

Linux Foundation Opens Submissions for 2014 Linux Training Scholarship Program

2014-08-05 17:24:10 by meshal

The Linux Training Scholarship Program provides funds to developers, IT professionals and students who show interest and promise in building Linux careers and shaping the future of the operating system and the enterprise, but who otherwise do not have the ability to attend Linux Foundation training courses. The Linux Foundation's Training Program includes a comprehensive set of Linux courses that are distribution-flexible, direct from the source, technically advanced and customizable.

The Scholarship Program in 2014 will award five scholarships to individuals who demonstrate the greatest need and who have already display some knowledge of Linux and open source software. The Linux Foundation is offering one scholarship in each of the following five categories. Each application will be reviewed by a panel at The Linux Foundation. Recipients will be notified early- to mid-October and will be publicly announced shortly thereafter at LinuxCon and CloudOpen Europe.

Categories include:

- Whiz Kids
- Women in Linux
- SysAdmin Super Stars
- Developer Do-Gooders
- Linux Kernel Gurus
